

Freedom of Information request 27-18

Request

We have been running a series of articles about the growing use of the benzodiazepine Xanax (alprazolam) in Scotland

My editor is keen to find out whether NHS Borders has experienced an increase in hospital admissions involving Xanax us and/or drug deaths where Xanax is present.

He is keen to find out how many deaths were recorded in the past calendar year where Xanax (alprazolam) was recorded as a contributing factor.

Response

As of the current date there are no recorded deaths held on the NHS Borders patient management system where Xanax was noted as a contributing factor in 2017.

Note:

The National Records of Scotland (NRS) holds details of all deaths which are registered in Scotland.

Drug-related deaths are identified using details from the death registrations supplemented by information from a specially-designed questionnaire, which is completed by forensic pathologists and lists the drugs and solvents that were found. NRS will produce figures on the 'drugs which were implicated in, or which potentially contributed to, the cause of death basis. Deaths are counted on the basis of the calendar year in which they are registered rather than the year of occurrence (as the latter might not be known). NRS closes its statistical database for a calendar year about five or six months after the end of the calendar year. 2017 drug related deaths have not been released by National Records of Scotland.

If you are not satisfied with the way your request has been handled or the decision given, you may ask NHS Borders to review its actions and the decision.
