What do the needles mean and what are they used for? The smaller the gauge the larger the diameter of the needle.

Contains a 29 gauge needle (1/2 inch long). - Suitable for small surface veins and subcutaneous injecting.*

Contains a 25 gauge needle (1 inch long). Commonly referred to as a (long) orange needle- This needle is suitable for deeper veins including the femoral (groin) vein but injecting here is more risky.*

Contains a 23 gauge needle (1 ¼ inch long). Commonly referred to as a (long) blue needle - This needle is also suitable for injecting into deeper veins. An orange needle is a less harmful option especially if injecting into the femoral (groin) vein. A blue needle can also be used for intra-muscular injection (glutes / outer quads).*

Contains a 21 gauge needle (1 ½ inch long). Commonly referred to as a (long) green needle – This needle is used for drawing up oil based steroids. The needle should then be changed for injection, and the steroid injected into a muscle - either in the glute (buttock) or into the quads (thigh) using a 23 gauge 1 ¼ inch blue needle or into the delts (shoulder/upper arm) using a 23 gauge (1 inch) blue needle.

* We would always recommend that clients discuss their choice of injecting site with the addiction service or Addaction.
